Personal Profile

After qualifying in 1990 as a dental surgeon from University College London I began my working career in an NHS general dental practice in Slough Berkshire.

I have worked on the NHS in the West Midlands within the general dental surgery environment since 1992. I enjoy my role as a foundation trainer where I provide guidance and mentoring support to newly qualified dentists during their first year in general practice.

In 2011 I was appointed as the training programme director for the Performers List Validation by Experience at Health Education England. I work with dentists who wish to gain experience of working within the NHS assessing their training portfolios. I also provide mentoring to dentists who have conditions on their performer number helping them to develop their personal development plans.

As an associate clinical teaching fellow at the University of Warwick Medical School I provide support to students undertaking their MSc in Implant Dentistry.

Professional and Personal Skills

I am a conscientious and confident person. I enjoy working with colleagues- providing knowledge and support to them and learning new skills from them. I have mentored family, friends and colleagues in the home and working environment. I find this very rewarding as it is a two-way process and enables one to engage with the other person in a protected environment.

Working in an NHS practice teaches you to be caring, empathetic and mindful of the needs of others around you.

I have experience of working on my own and within a team and can adapt to situations as required. I have good time management skills and can work to deadlines.

I am meticulous and passionate about my work and will always deliver to the best of my ability.

Interests

I enjoy spending time with my family. My hobbies include cooking and going for long walks. I have recently taken up gardening and enjoy growing flowers and vegetables.

I undertake lots of charity work and enjoy fundraising. I am in the local rotary club where we raise money for local and international charities.
